Environmental Policy

The quality of environment that future generations will inherit is completely dependent upon the care and responsibility taken by this generation in its activities that impact the environment.

Jako Industries recognises its responsibility to avoid any type of degradation of the natural environment.

To achieve its objective of ensuring that all company activities are performed in a safe and responsible manner that will minimise any risk to the environment, Jako Industries will:

- Integrate environmental considerations into all aspects of our operations;
- Endeavor to foster an environmentally responsible culture within our workforce;
- Where practical, use products prepared in the most environmentally conscious way;
- Encourage the recycling of as much of Jako Industries waste products as is practical;
- Review work practices and areas regularly to ensure compliance with standards;
- Continuously monitor our performance and respond to feedback gained; and
- Provide information to our clients about the products we use.

Jako Industries will hold all levels of management accountable for environmental care issues and will ensure that every employee understands their responsibility to follow working practices that will protect the environment from unnecessary risk.

By managing our activities with consideration to the impact that they will have upon the natural environment, both immediately and in the long term, Jako Industries will do its part to ensure that the environment left to future generations is of the highest quality possible.
